

A background photograph showing a woman with long blonde hair and two young children, a boy and a girl, in a workshop or classroom setting. They are all wearing yellow t-shirts. The woman is leaning over, looking at something in her hands, while the children look on. The image is dark and has a grainy, artistic feel.

IN SUPPORT OF

GHETTO
KIDS

The Next Chapter Fund

A proposal to support the education, artistic development, and long-term opportunities of the Ghetto Kids of Uganda.

PREPARED BY

A Reyes family initiative

STATUS

Private concept — not published

THE IDEA

Recognition opened a door. Opportunity is what walks them through it.

The Ghetto Kids were already followed by millions before the world's biggest stage introduced them to billions more. What changed that night was scale — not their talent, and not what they need next.

The Next Chapter Fund exists to convert that visibility into something durable: school fees paid on time, professional training, mentorship, stable housing and healthcare, and a path toward careers these young artists choose for themselves. It is an independent initiative, built to support the children — not to promote anyone else's involvement in them.

WHAT IT FUNDS

Education

Tuition, books, technology, tutoring, and scholarships.

Artistic Development

Training in dance, music, singing, choreography, and performance.

Mentorship

Access to artists, producers, choreographers, and educators.

Well-Being

Housing, nutrition, healthcare, safety, and responsible adult support.

Global Opportunities

Educational exchanges, workshops, residencies, and cultural experiences.

Creative Projects

Music, film, live performance, and content that builds sustainable careers.

HOW IT IS STAGED

1 Support today

Reliable funding for education, housing, nutrition, healthcare, and immediate needs.

2 Develop their talent

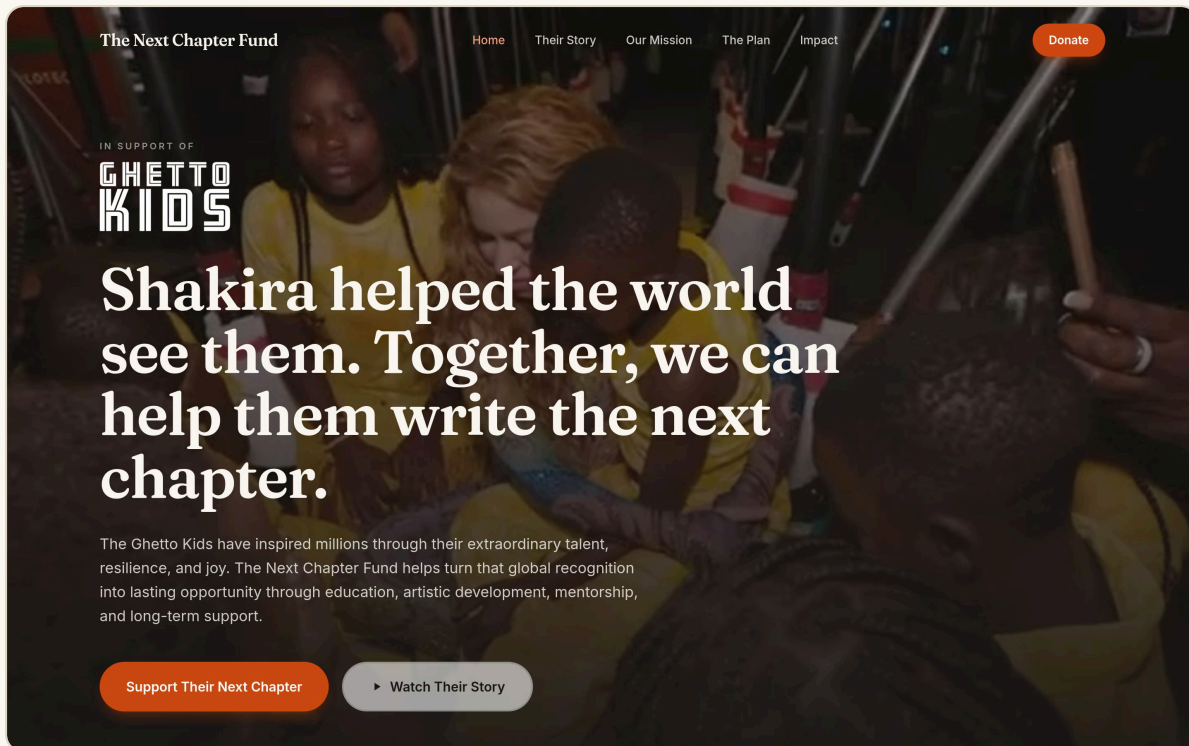

Professional programs in dance, music, performance, content creation, and mentorship.

3 Build long-term opportunity

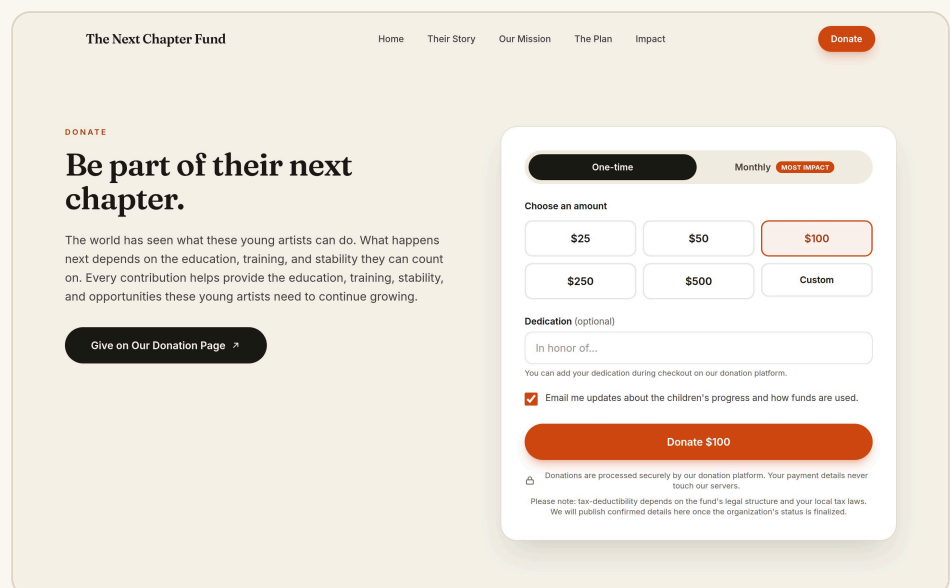

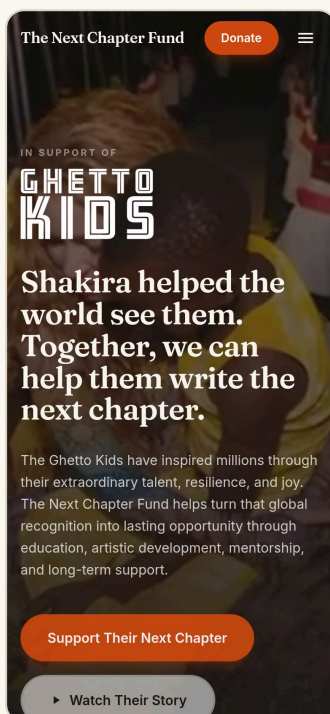

Scholarships, international educational programs, industry partnerships, and career pathways — developed with qualified legal, educational, and child-welfare professionals.

What a visitor sees first.

The page opens on footage from backstage, with the children's own mark above the headline. Nothing has been published — this is the built site, shown privately.

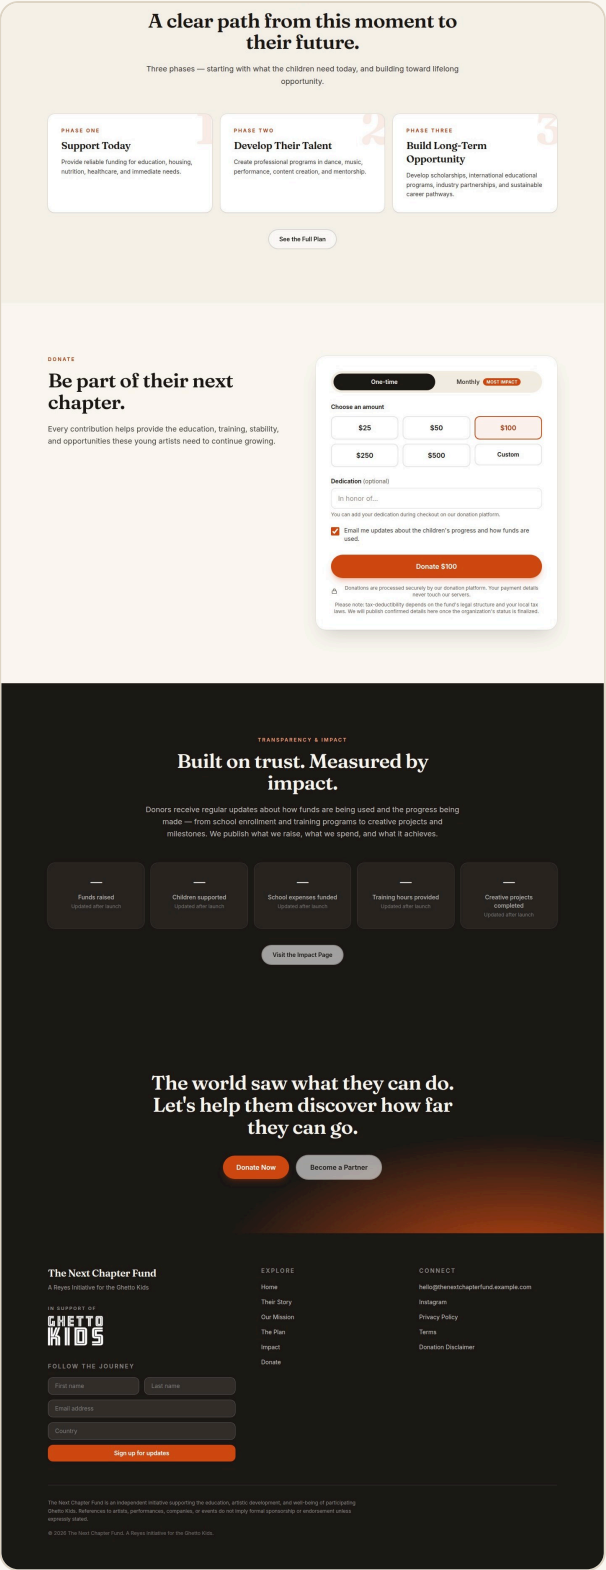

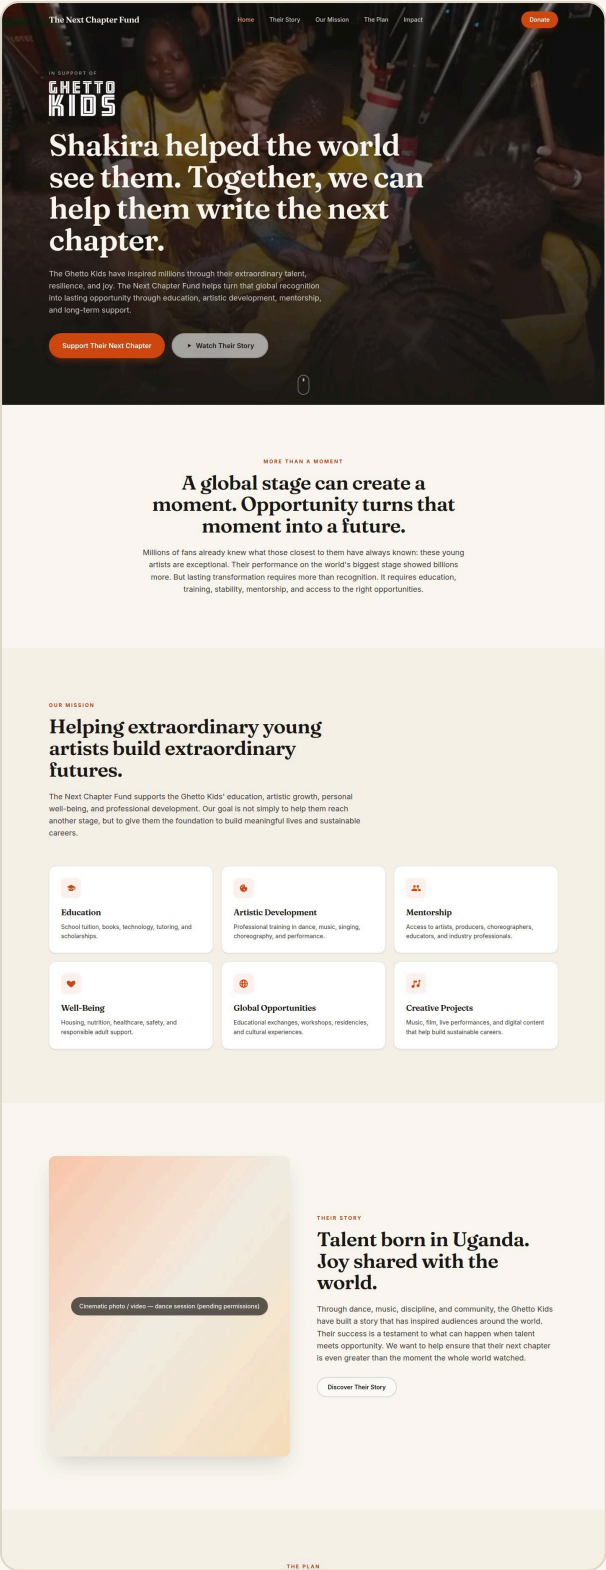

The opening frame. On the live site the background is moving footage, silent and looping.

Donations — one-time or monthly, with suggested giving levels.

Built mobile-first.

The whole page, top to bottom.

Read left column first, then right — hero, mission, the six areas of support, their story, the three phases, donations, transparency, and the closing invitation.

HOW THIS IS BEING HANDLED

Nothing goes live until the people closest to these children say yes.

- Not published. The site is private and will stay that way until every approval below is in hand.
- Guardian consent first. Written approval from each child's legal guardian for the use of their names, images, and stories is a precondition, not a formality.
- No endorsement implied. The site states plainly that references to any artist, performance, company, or event do not imply sponsorship or endorsement. Every reference is factual.
- No fabricated results. Impact figures are left empty until real, verified numbers exist. No invented totals, no borrowed credibility.
- Child welfare before content. Guiding principles include education before exposure and child welfare before content.
- Structured properly. Funds will be held and accounted for through an established nonprofit structure, with disbursements to the children's needs in Uganda made through their existing organization.

On the reference to Shakira. The homepage currently opens with the line "Shakira helped the world see them." It is written as a statement of fact about the performance — deliberately not a claim of endorsement, partnership, or involvement. If any wording, image, or footage is unwelcome, it will be changed or removed immediately, no explanation needed.

WHAT WE ARE ASKING

Nothing binding, and no association is assumed. We wanted you to see this before anyone else does. Specifically: that you are comfortable with the reference above and the use of the backstage footage — and, only if it is ever of interest, that the door stays open to whatever involvement you might welcome. A "no" to any part of it is completely fine and changes nothing about the work.
